DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 9/3/03 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Clayton 5,661,339 in view of Takahashi et al 5,561,208.

Clayton discloses a method of manufacturing a structural frame comprising: providing a base polymer matrix and net-shape injection molding a molding material of a liquid crystal polymer into a shape of a structural frame 12 (in Fig. 1) for supporting electronic components (see col. 3, lines 5-10); providing an electronic circuit board (assembly 32, 58) having heat generating electronic components of either RAM chips or a microprocessors disposed thereon (see col. 8, lines 40-45); mounting the circuit board in direct physical contact with the structural frame with the electronic components being in thermal communication with the structural frame

Art Unit: 3729

(see col. 6, lines 49-53); dissipating heat from the heat generating electronic components through the structural frame (see col. 7, lines 47-50).

Clayton does not teach mixing a thermally conductive filler material into the base polymer matrix to form a molding material having a uniform distribution filler material throughout the entire molding material.

Takahashi teaches that liquid crystal polymer materials can be mixed with a uniform distribution of a conductive material, i.e. carbon fibers (see col. 13, lines 19-40), to provide a molding material for net-shape injection molding (see col. 10, lines 10-15), which has excellent properties as a structural frame (carrier) in supporting electronic components (see col. 16, lines 55-64).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the method of Clayton by mixing a uniform distribution of a thermally conductive filler material into the base polymer matrix, as taught by Takahashi, to advantageously provide an excellent net-shape injection molding material for the structural frame that supports electronic components.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-3 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
